Problems with instructions Clutch Faced with a problem I couldn't understand, I remembered a group that offered "spiritual training," with which I was already familiar. I went there and showed them what I had learned. The teacher said, "Really, that's all I need. I'll fix your car." The next day, I found a problem with my car. I went to a mechanic shop, saying, "This is what I learned, that I'll fix it by myself." The mechanic looked at me and said, "You should have come to us sooner." It turned out that I had found the problem wrong. Cara Flash Hp Strawberry ST45982 SC3571C Cara Flash Hp Strawberry ·Car Flash Hp. ST45982 SC3571C ·ST45982 SC3571C. SC9701A ·SC9773A ·SC9771A. ST457. Category:Swing stylesQ: iOS - How to remove 'modal' in iOS modal view? I have a view similar to a built in iOS application navigation bar which can be used as a 'push' button. The top of the view can be used as a back button and the bottom of the view as a 'next' button. Initially the view, when displayed, had a translucent background color from the bottom of the view. When pressed, this background color is replaced by the user interface color of the top label. I would like to modify the behaviour of this button and I'm not sure how to do this. How do I remove this 'modal' appearance from the view? So that pressing the button does not replace the background color by the 'built in' color. A: I'm not sure which feature you use exactly for your modal view, but what about disabling the interaction of the modal view itself? func dismissViewControllerAnimated(animated: Bool, completion: (() -> Void)?) This method is overridden for UIViewController to optionally dismiss the presenting view controller's presentingViewController in response to a call to dismissViewControllerAnimated. If you do nothing to dismiss the presentingViewController, the presenting view controller's modal presentation style is set to the default, which is not modal. So you can dismiss the presentingViewController, but only if it is set as presentationStyle to 9df0af710a
