What's New In PixaMSN?

PixaMSN is a minimal and extremely lightweight application that comes as a nice replacement for the venerable MSN Messenger. You can run the program in your browser as a standalone application or in a standalone window. It's a 'just chat' program that doesn't have any features aside from messaging and contact list management. In other words, PixaMSN doesn't need to be installed in order to use it, which means it can be copied and ran from any workstation without prior installation. The application offers a clean, minimal and light interface that will let you chat to your buddies or manage your contacts in your contact list. Just to be clear, PixaMSN doesn't need to be downloaded or installed; you can simply copy the application on your USB Flash drive and run it from any other Windows workstation. In other words, PixaMSN can be run in any browser, but it must be run from your computer's USB Flash drive, not from your internal hard drive. Obviously, you will need to have a connection to the Internet in order to send and receive messages. So if you don't have access to the Internet at the moment, this application won't help you at all. You can use it to send and receive messages to and from your friends, and you can change the name on your contact list to show a custom "screen name" on your buddies. You can also ask for new messages, and you can change your status messages from a small and clean interface. Other than that, PixaMSN is a nice way to talk to your friends on the go, and the fact that it doesn't take much space on your flash drive makes it the perfect MSN Messenger replacement wherever you go.
