I am running a mac OS and my root user is configured with the password. I have done the following: First I tried sudo -i but it asked me for the my password and I am not able to enter it.
Next I tried sudo su and sudo su - but in both cases it asked for my password. I am facing this issue since I started using a mac, for over a year now. Doing sudo -i once solves the problem but is not the best solution. I do not want to be asked for my password each time I want to set the root password. Is there any alternative to what I am doing? I am getting tired of typing the root password. A: After reading through the comments, I realized that this is a duplicate. I had posted this question like a year ago and it was still unanswered. So
