: Goldeneye Wacky Wings VR: Goldeneye is a VR sports game for the PlayStation VR. Its plot centers around the attempt to smuggle an Olympic gold medal into the US while one player is in the United States while another is in a VR headset, with events based on the fictional game Goldeneye. The game was revealed on April 15, 2015 and released on April 21, 2015. It is the first VR-only title for the PlayStation VR system. Gameplay Wacky Wings VR: Goldeneye is a singles-player virtual reality first-person shooter that supports both online multiplayer and local split-screen. Players must complete various Airbourne Missions (tasks that link together multiple single-mission objectives for a single reward) and Airbourne Tours (tasks that link together multiple single-mission objectives from multiple Airbourne Missions), which are chained together to allow collecting certain sport-specific items for points, or jerseys. Acts allow players to complete various single missions to complete a certain objective (blow up a bomb, go on a nuclear attack, free captured pilots, hit a moving target, etc.), or they may choose to go on an Airbourne Tour, where they are given a certain number of objectives to meet to reach their objective, such as collecting a certain number of flags in a certain place in a certain amount of time to hit a moving target. The objectives players complete for points and jerseys have different requirements to meet their respective task; players, for example, who can't jump to the moon must shoot down planes while wearing the Class C Climbing Jersey, whereas a player who can't shoot down aircraft must wear the Olympic Wrestling Jersey to meet their objective. While, unlike the original game, all missions and tours have checkpoints: during a free-roaming Tour, players can restart any time for a cost of one-third a used currency and a chunk of experience, but when they land, they are forced to start the Tour from the begining, then each succeeding mission is only restarted upon completion of the previous. Tracks Players progress through the ranks by completing certain tasks and earning rewards, some of which are locked behind certain levels. As players achieve high rank, new tracks are unlocked, allowing them access to more equipment, aircraft, and higher-ranking avatars. The player can use unlockable Tokens (provided in minigames, seen in the trailers of Wacky Wings : Goldeneye, but not the actual game) to advance in rank
