“We are excited to be able to announce the arrival of ‘HyperMotion Technology’ to FIFA gameplay with the release of FIFA 22, our 22nd release of the most popular video game in history,” said Daniel Rabinowitz, VP, Pro Sports Gaming. “Our developers and gamer community have contributed their passion to deliver an extremely natural feel to this player model, with a specific focus on enhancing the over-the-top play of key ball-carriers and attacking players.” Before the advent of gameplay technology, players were represented through their boxy graphics of the past. By leveraging new motion capture technology, the game has become more lifelike, giving players the ability to use their true-to-life movement to create more authentic moments in FIFA 22. “Today’s announcement is a powerful example of how we are pushing the boundaries of technology to deliver ‘Next Gen’ gameplay,” said John Riccitello, Executive Vice President, Business Affairs and Development at Electronic Arts. “This is the dawning of a new era in sports gaming; using sensors to capture and express human movement with a fidelity that was impossible just a few years ago. It’s a long and important journey that represents what EA is all about: pushing the limits of what’s possible with technology.” “This is the dawning of a new era in sports gaming; using sensors to capture and express human movement with a fidelity that was impossible just a few years ago,” said John Riccitello, Executive Vice President, Business Affairs and Development at Electronic Arts. “It’s a long and important journey that

Q: Ask for user input in Facebook application Here's what I'm trying to do: Add two buttons, one to Submit form and one to Cancel form If a user clicks Submit, the form is submitted via HTTP POST If the user cancels out, then I run a `window.confirm()` in the background, and navigate them to a different page. I have it all working fine - except I need to Ask the user for a value (a URL) Then do what I need to do with that value. I don't see anyway for FB to give me that value. Does any one know of a way to do this? A: I ended up just getting the url from the `signed_request` and using it to load the `/Facebook-redirect-url/` route on my web app. Facebook uses a `redirect` parameter as an indicator that it's a temporary redirect, but you just need to know the `redirect_url` that it provides, and you're set.

Q: UWP: Passing application location into StoreDetail I am developing an application that requires me to open a web browser to a specific store. The website requires me to sign in, for this I am building a custom `UserControl` that will pass information to the `StoreDetail` page in the manifest. In FIFA 22, EA SPORTS has made many exciting changes to the way you enjoy the game. From new approaches to the way you control your team, improve your attributes and unearth ultimate power. It's time to take your foot off the gas and get back on the pedal. The first thing you notice about FIFA 22 is its new physics engine. You can dive into it for more technical details, but here's a quick overview of how FIFA's all-new Play Control system impacts gameplay. It's easier to control your players and easier for you to feel the difference. This is backed up by a new and improved AI that makes attacking smarter and manages the game better. The defensive system is more modern, intuitive and, of course, more realistic. You can now see how the opposition team is keeping shape. You can decide how they approach the ball, how they line up and where they are. The new opposition AI allows defenders to organise into a more cohesive shape in possession. When it comes to the defensive side of the game, gameplay is more intuitive and goes hand in hand with attacking. The positioning of the defenders has been changed, for example. This means that they will cover the gaps better and come out to challenge more quickly. You can now move the ball back a third and change the angle of attack more easily.
