1) Learn Skills: Learn to cast your spells. VoiceWarrior teaches you about the general differences between Gather, Heal, Cast a spell, and Cast a buff spell. VoiceWarrior works through multiple means. You can use text to speech to read the text descriptions, highlight a key phrase, and just say that phrase if you don't have it highlighted already. You can place a marker anywhere in the text and even turn off auto-formatting by saying "Show on keyboard". The ultimate method is to keep the window open and say the key phrase while you're in game. 2) Learn advanced skills: Once you have learned a few basic spells you want to learn the rest. You need to learn important actions like casting buffs when leveling your skills. Even simple actions like "Reinforce Forward Shields" or "Teleport Home" are important to learning how to control your battle. 3) Take control: Once you know how to cast, cast everything! Once you have this learned, no one will be able to get in your way as long as you use the skills you have learned. 4) Find out your VoiceClass: Like in classic text-to-speech programs, you can find out what key phrase to say to start your different categories with, as well as where to place the markers. In VoiceWarrior, there are several methods to do this. For the most part, you can just use the text in the set command menu. Some commands, like "Cast Buffs" are specific to the spells you have, but "Cast Phasers" is always the same. The alert function then displays the name of your VoiceClass. So "Cast (VoiceClass) Phasers" gives "Cast (VoiceClass) Phasers". 5) Create your own VoiceClass: For this one, you will need to define your own VoiceClass. This will function very similarly to a Language model, but specialized to the commands you want. You must also put in the name of your VoiceClass in order to use it in any macros. You can do this through Macro Naming, changing the Define Macro to be the name of your VoiceClass. Here is an example of where you would add your own class. If you want to set up your own VoiceClass, simply name it "Take control" and then add the commands you want into the proper category. The idea is to give commands that are related to one another and that will turn into common commands. The actual "Take control
