"I started off looking for a tank that would store a lot of prims, I was looking for something big and mediums just look way too precious. This thing fit the bill perfectly and has plenty of storage for most of my items now! I have a few 4x4 prims that still make it in, it might be time for me to find a new one. After having it for 2 months now, it has held up really great! I carry most of my prims with me, every game the buffer fills up and using this tank, I don't have to worry about it getting missed, a huge amount of my children also use this to store their items! The tool isn't as rigid as other tanks, and it's not very deep (had some trouble with some tanks that are really deep), but to be honest, it didn't bother me at all. I'm probably one of those people that is happy using 1x3s for a lot of things and this tank is perfect for stacking 1x4s or 2x4s on top of each other or on top of them. Overall, I would recommend this to other people. I mean it's a rocket!(a used one at that)" -TioniVars From Stardew Valley paul-at-elite (9/1/2018) "This was my first Starry Cargo, also the first mod i've made (mo blocking ball, cutie puffs the water). I can't believe i bough it! Ive since seen Tank Advance MP02 floating around and after owning multiple Cargo tanks in the past, dont think i would ever be needing any other tank. The Starry Cargo is surprisingly sturdy and not too big, so great for travelling around with. So far no issues at all with keeping items in there, even ones with large prims.

Better have a padded floor for sure =p! The inside size is approx 27x17x7.3 and the weight nothing really. I would recommend this tank to others, and would most likely purchase one again. To the next Prime-crop! (On a down side, with me being a first modder, i made a terrible mistake by not measuring the posts out first, think i'll be making plenty of mods in the near future) Hope you guys
