Hebron fellowship hyderabad,Â .Binding of the transcription factor C/EBP alpha to a cluster of DNA containing three cyclic AMP-responsive element (CRE)-like sequences. In starved hepatocytes, cAMP signaling via cAMP-responsive element (CRE)-binding protein (CREB) stimulates liver-specific expression of genes such as the rat cytochrome P-450s. In the present study, we isolated a portion of the rat cytochrome P-450c gene encompassing 119 bases of DNA. The region included three cyclic AMP-responsive element (CRE)-like sequences. Binding of CREB to the 3' half of the isolated region was shown in vitro, and specific binding of CREB to the first CRE-like sequence in the gene was demonstrated in vivo. CREB is therefore a bifunctional protein, binding directly to DNA to activate transcription, but also to other proteins to regulate their function.
