Lewis-Moore diving accident The Lewis-Moore Diving Accident occurred on June 14, 1975 while water skiing off Chatham Pier, Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts. Two 15-year-old boys, Sean Moore and his younger brother Martin were killed. Thomas Lewis survived after he fished Moore brothers out of the water. Lewis was charged with manslaughter but in April 1976 the court ruling was overturned because the state had not proven that the dives were unsafe. Accident At around 12:30pm on a Sunday afternoon, Martin and Sean Moore met Lewis, a former US Navy reservist (Lieutenant Commander, retired), at the ferry port on Chatham, Massachusetts. They then started to take a boat to Prides Island, a beach on the area of Sippewissett, Massachusetts where Terry Fox has run the Marathon there twice. Once on the island they took a motorcycle and started to ride on the beach and at a pond where they bathe. The Smith family owned that island at that time. Then they got back to the main land while they had been riding and with Martin being behind with Sean they got into water going forward to the other side of the bridge. Martin found his younger brother submerged and in difficulty. He was already unconscious. They quickly got back on the road but this time turning a little bit right with the intention of reaching the closest house of Prides Island, where they could jump ashore. Lewis had even bought a resuscitator because he was a diving instructor in mind of setting his new business in a year. Martin then turned back to their own bike and waited at the roadside. Lewis jumped into the hole at Chatham dock and swam after them hoping to drag Sean out and get him on board his boat that he was renting nearby but he was unsuccessful in his actions. Only ish Wikipedia The Flemish Wikipedia () is the Dutch-language version of Wikipedia. Its articles were created in 2003, and as of February 25, 2016 it has 598,236 articles and 1.4% of the article count of the encyclopedia. After Dutch, the Flemish Wikipedia is the sixth largest of the nine Wikipedias. History In February 2003, a few Dutch-speaking editors created the Flemish Wikipedia version, which followed the Wikipedia model closely. This early version maintained a strong bias towards the content created in the Flemish part of Belgium, with only a handful of articles on present-day places and people. Articles of speakers of various languages in Flanders were largely disfavoured. Hans Kollbaum, writing for De Groene Amsterdammer, on October 9, 2004, stated that "if there's a success story about the Flemish version, this must be it." At the beginning, it was mainly a hub of discussion for Dutch-speaking Boteveniers: enthusiasts of the Dutch-language Wikipedia. But within a few months, Boteveniers turned to the Wikipedia model from the Vlaams Belang: a nationalistic political party in Belgium. A January 2005 article by TVO reported that more than 300 articles had been translated from Dutch into Flemish. Near the end of 2006, 44,747 articles were created in Flanders, and the Wikipedia Foundation expressed its hope that this would continue. Until the end of 2007, the Flemish Wikipedia followed the Dutch language and The Flemish Wikipedia at the time used the languages bureaus in Flanders as resources for articles. On July 1, 2008, the Flemish Wikipedia became a "live" translation of Wikipedia. As Flemish Wikipedia have its own version of Wikipedia database, they updated their own article pages first. Because Flemish Wikipedia is a smaller community of editors compared to the Dutch Wikipedia, they have about 12,000 active contributors. However, the numbers of editors per article shows that there is not much of editing variation between the two Wikipedia: on average, an Flemish Wikipedia has 0.73 editors per article, compared to the Dutch Wikipedia with 0.83. The Flemish Wikipedia continued creating articles on present-day places and individuals who have been important to the Flemish movement or to the Flemish people. Beginning in February 2015, The Flemish Wikipedia

The world is no longer your pastime. There is no room for idleness anymore. The future is right here. Right now. And it's your responsibility to bring it into being. You can be part of it, or you can be its victims. You can be its magician, its saint, its master, its actor, its crumbs, its clown. Who wants to be the saviour? Look around and you'll find the answer... You are a Ghoul Hunter, specializing in the execution of captured Soviet ghouls. Your job is to retrieve intelligence, sabotage enemy communications, and protect yourself from exposure, all the while trying to get laid. The Moscow offices of the _ZST_, or _Groznenskaya Skikhteniya_, offer you a unique opportunity: you can start your own team, complete with a computer, laser tech, an on-site brewery, and more. Draw your own morals. You're the boss. Call what you want "evil", and go get 'em. Playlist for "tunguska the visitation" 14 Aug 2012 | 1.0 GB Screenshots 3D-Cinematic Preview Developer Notes The Visitation is a top-down shooter, infused with survival elements such as food, medicine, body energy, character stat buff, hazardous environments, and inventory management. Tunguska: The Visitation is a two-man-team action game powered by Unreal Engine 3. We use client/server architecture to allow anyone with an internet connection to participate in the game. The game is currently in Alpha stage, and some features and elements won't be final, but we are going to provide updates via Steam Playlist to keep the players updated. Key features of the game are: - 3D-Gfx with a top-down camera - Old school gameplay, no mouse, no keyboard, no aimbot, but very, very hard and intense - Action-RPG influenced set of character powers, weapons, and gadgets - Environments are not to be explored, the game is about surviving and avoiding death - No backstory, we want to tell the story of the Tunguska Event from within - Dark atmosphere, hope you enjoy the game, as much as we enjoy creating it. At this moment we support LAN/LOCAL multiplayer and game sessions, but we are not sure we will implement the features down the road as
