This version was made to fix a problem in the switch to the new binary block format. In general, the binary block and the index will be stored on two different hard drives, so when a particular block is corrupted, Artifactory won't be able to communicate with the other one, causing a partial block download to fail. This version includes the jarsigner binary as a part of the zip. For Android devices running API 9 and higher, this was an optional part of the zip. This changes the behavior of downloading an APK from a remote repository. Fetch Artifact allows you to group and direct HTTP requests from a repository in order to fetch artifacts from remote repositories that are separated from the repository. This ensures that all the artifacts are separated and used rather than multiple artifacts, which would be downloaded through the regular HTTP GET requests. For more information, see Fetch Request. The Office Setup download process provides you with pre-selected language and currency settings to facilitate the installation and deployment process. Office Setup downloads language and currency information from the Windows.resources file found in the downloaded file, or from an associated website. The language and currency are selected based on the language and currency you have chosen in Windows. For more information, see Office 2016 Language and Currency. To ensure your download is completed successfully, please make sure that your computer has a connection to the Internet. If the download process fails when you're connected to the Internet, try downloading the file from a different location. Sec8ef588b
