code plug import from ctes (craig taylor electronic transcription service) a free service offered by craig taylor transcription services ltd. it is limited to us-based radios. data is exported to a ms access database which you then link to the imported ctes code plugs. as of december, 2010, no mention of a similar service for canada is made. code plug conversion software code plug converter is an open source project of windows guru val gill trilug . it is a small and relatively simple program that does the hard work of converting the code plugs to html format so they can be read in a web browser. the user can choose between outputting code plugs to their own web site, or to the internet from code plug upload. the code plug converter works with other online services as well, including import/export. you will also discover things that work, and others that don't - especially if you have no experience with a particular radio. this is good information to have if you ever want to program the radio yourself, especially if you have an ht1250. though it isn't always possible to test a radio with the intended program, you can see if the radio will work with a cps with the same software and same settings. if you want, you can also use separate programs for each radio's rss, and have a single program that can output to multiple radios at the same time. the best rule is to do this on a computer, with the same hostname on all your radios, so that the same radio configuration can be loaded on all of your radios. otherwise there will be a different "radio a" and "radio b" on each of your radios.
