Distribution: License: Price: Website: Official Page: FAQ: Category: 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image processing method and an image processing apparatus, which process an image by use of a plurality of filter banks. 2. Description of the Related Art In digital still cameras and digital video cameras, various kinds of image processing methods have been proposed for the purpose of, for example, improving the image quality of an image or improving the operability. In particular, the imaging characteristics of sensors such as CCD's and the kind and number of filters and coefficients to be used vary according to the properties of each sensor, and there is a problem that the filter design for obtaining the optimum imaging characteristics is considerably complicated. Accordingly, a method has been proposed which uses a plurality of filter banks, each of which processes an image signal using a filter of a predetermined type, and obtains an image signal having a better imaging characteristics than an image signal obtained by processing an image signal with a single filter bank by making use of the characteristic of the filter banks to switch the filter banks, which are to be used, in accordance with the characteristics of an image to be processed. However, the above method has a problem that, even when a filter bank of an appropriate type is selected, if the characteristics of an image to be processed change and a filter bank having an inappropriate filter characteristic is selected in spite of the change in the characteristics of an image to be processed, an image obtained by processing the image using the selected filter bank is extremely deteriorated. In particular, the deterioration in the imaging characteristic cannot be ignored in the case where a color image is obtained by using a monochrome image processing apparatus.
