Chat Avatars 3. Example Screenshots 4. Other Mac Apps (AVCam Basic runs in a window that is usually unused) AVCam Basic Interface: ------------------- The Avatars are created in a window on your screen, which is usually unused. The percentage represents how far along the shot has progressed. A new image is created every time you hit the "Snapshot" button. You can also view/modify the image by clicking the "Avatar" button. Modification options are: - Size of the image (pixels) - Crop to a certain percentage of the image - Add text to the image - Add a background to the image You can also simply close the image by clicking the "Close Image" button. What's New In?

AVCam is a utility for the Windows operating system that enables you to take a snapshot of your webcam as an image, and use that image as an avatar in your chat client. You can use the standard

Windows desktop image control window to choose between formats like JPG, TIFF, and BMP. Then just click "Take Snapshot" and the image is instantly available in your chat client! Additionally you can also use the image you create as a frame or overlay for text, and use the custom text and frame editing system to create a wide variety of effects to create a look that is uniquely you. Most importantly you can take multiple frames each time you take a picture, and the frames are automatically saved to disk in a folder of your choosing, so you can collect a series of images to use as your Avatar in your chat client. In addition to the built-in frame-like graphics editing tools, you can use Voodoo to create complex effects that can also be used for your Avatar. Because AVCam can be used as a standalone tool, it makes it easy to experiment with effects that can be easily recreated for your chat client. In addition to your regular webcam images, you can also use the program to take photos of your monitor, projectors, or even toys, and use those as your Avatar. AVCam will take pictures of your webcam as a JPG or TIFF image. Additionally it can also take BMP images, and automatically scale the image to have a desired size. This means you can either have it take a snapshot as a JPG or TIFF and have it automatically resize the image to whatever dimensions you choose. The program can even be used to take a photo of your monitor, so that you can use that image to make your chat Avatar. If you take a snapshot while you're online, it will automatically add the image to your chat client. Just select the image, then click "Set as Avatar" and it's yours! Additionally you can also set the image to be your Avatar for multiple chats, or to set a certain time interval so it will take a new image at that time. The best way to use AVCam is to take a frame or overlay each time you take a picture, so you can have a series of images to use in your chat client. You can either use the built-in frame-like effects, or you can use the custom text and frame editing system to create a look that is uniquely you.// // TPOwnedPointerCell.m // TouchPaper // // Created by C.W.
